"AVERN" DENIES WORKING

Club Under Watch But Busy as Usual

HYPOCRISY SEEN IN MOOT CLAUSE
Restaurants Will Offer No Restrictions on Companionship

What price tavern? What price workingman?
The tavern would be set up in Massachusetts and if it is set up as a substitute for the corner saloon, as a place where the poor workingman could get his glass of beer.
The tavern, as a matter of fact, is a place of legislative hypocrisy which would deprive the "poor workingman" of his rights and put him down in a low social scale by himself, to be regulated as to his habits and customs.
So says Rep. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., action of one of the most distinguished family in the history of Massachusetts.
"They tell us that if we do not have the tavern we will encourage the speakeasy and the bootlegger," says Mr. Lodge. "They also say without the tavern the man with only a little money will not be able to get a drink as the man of larger means. If these arguments were correct, there would be powerful reasons for voting for the tavern."
But the friends of the tavern seem to forget the restaurant, which provides all the facilities of the tavern and a good many more. Under the proposed law, the restaurant will be less restricted than the tavern and consequently should be more attractive to the drinking public.

PEOPLE WILL DECIDE
"The tavern is an artificial and legislative creation, considered unnecessary for such a state as New York, where the liquor problem is probably more difficult. It is another attempt by the part of the government to tell people in detail how they should drink, when the experience of the past decade should have taught us that the people will settle this in their own natural manner."
"It is not liberal, but restrictive. If, therefore, you are looking for the most effective competition to drive the illegal liquor traffic out of business, you should prefer the liberally regulated restaurant to the restrictively regulated tavern."

"Nor is this all. The tavern not only restricts, but it would impose restrictions on the average man which would not apply to the man who can afford to go to a hotel."
"It provides in effect that one man can go to a hotel dining room, furnished with curtains and decorative lighting effects, where he can eat, drink and dance to the company of ladies. WOMEN ARE CITED."

"But it apparently tells the man of small means who goes to a tavern that he cannot be allowed to go with a lady; that he must drink with men only, in a place surrounded by windows and filled with bright lights where all can see him and where all privacy is denied."
"This seems to me to draw a class line and is, for this reason, repugnant. If, instead of creating this new drinking place, we were to use some of the numerous restaurants which the average man can and does patronize today, all persons would be able to drink on equal terms."

"Finally, it must be recognized that the tavern would create a whole set of new property rights directly dependent on the liquor industry. It is like a game, hotels and clubs which have been the reasons for the prohibition tend to be not only ineffective, but demoralizing and not unnecessary and superfluous as well."

It was easy come and go for the attendants at the Theatrical Club at Tremont and Warren sts., in the heart of the theater district last night. Even John Law, supposed guard at the club entrance, was missing, when this picture was snapped. At least this trio were experiencing no difficulty entering the club. (Boston American photo.)

Patrolman Daniel F. McCartney, of Division 3, stood guard in the cold last night at the doors of the South End Citizens' Club, Washington st., near Northampton st., but members and guests continued their tramp through the door and into the clubrooms. McCartney is pictured standing at the door as two guests leave the club.

Teacher Beams in Court on Youth Held in Robbery

She declined to be interviewed, but observers in Dedham court today were willing to wager that the spark of love for David Winslow still burns in the heart of Dorothy Brennan, pretty Boston school teacher.
Winslow, six weeks' sweetheart of the girl, with two other youths, Allen J. Jay, of Brookline ed., and Harry Beign, of Oakdale ave., Jamaica Plain, went on trial before Judge Clifford Sanborn on charges growing out of the holdup and robbery of $12 from the school teacher last Tuesday.
Police say that Winslow conspired with the other youths to carry out the holdup.

Miss Brennan in court with her mother today centered her attention on Winslow.
They exchanged nods. Several times her mother spoke to her and she made answer, but not once did she turn her face from Winslow's.
When Judge Sanborn had ordered the men held in $10,000 bail, the grand jury and the crowd had left the courtroom, Miss Brennan remained to keep her eye on Winslow until he left the courtroom.
Although police declined to reveal details of the confession it was learned that it was culmination of an argument between Williams and Merriam over a girl.
Strained before Judge Joseph Whelan, in Municipal court, he was held without bail for trial Friday.

U. S. DEBT AT RECORD

TIME HIGH

Increase of $483,859,000 in Month of November Announced

Washington, Dec. 2 (AP)—The United States public debt increased $483,859,000 during November to a total of $23,334,115,771, a new peace-time high.

Receipts during the month were $208,861,275.
Ordinary expenditures were $205,905,921.

But emergency expenditures for various phases of the recovery program were $205,514,333 to make November's outlay $489,525,251.

While emergency expenditures accounted for approximately half the increase in the public debt, a gain in the general fund accounted for another $200,000,000.

At the close of November, the treasury cash balance was $1,107,325,002 as compared with $609,161,283 at the close of October.

For the first five months of the fiscal year treasury receipts came to $1,138,504,402, while ordinary expenditures were $1,218,143,173. Emergency recovery expenditures over the same months were $628,848,003.

The deficit at the end of the five months, including emergency expenditures, was $772,465,574 as compared with $1,151,985,519 at the same time last year.

The new public debt figure was regarded as a peace-time high. Official sources dispute the fact that the gross public debt is at a higher level in years following the World War. The public debt reached a peak of $26,956,701 on Aug. 31, 1918.

Clubbers Moan at Shaved Profits

By WOOD B. TOPER

Boston supper club impresarios can't take it.
The boys of the de luxe "hot spots," who discouraged light spenders and coldly barred their doors to impetuous college boys in the "good old days," can't stand police-made depression.

"Gene" Hultman's half-post outside of standing cops' outside the doors of speakeasies, and inserting sergeants and lieutenants in the three clubs that have a liquor license, is not so hot, if you ask the boys.

In fact they demonstrate by their attitude without being asked, as this correspondent learned in a stroll about the town.
If anyone thinks that the latest police action hasn't affected the sale of liquor in this town, here's a tip: The flow of spirits, good or otherwise, hasn't been stopped by any means, but it has been diminished.

Take the Mayfair, if you want to take any club. We don't. Considered the most de luxe of all the de luxe "spots," whose only door is said to be the best in Boston.

Although the Mayfair in past months has taken plenty of trade away from hotels because of its cuisine, how it has suffered from the annoyance of the "law."

Because it is one of three clubs with a victualer's license, the ornate Mayfair is nightly hounded by a limit of the law, and it rapidly does the club no good.

PRESS NOT WELCOME
When I arrived at the door of the Mayfair I made another discovery. That was the boys of the press, hitherto welcomed around and about to a certain extent, are now de trop or something. In other words no publicity is wanted.

Greeted by name by the doorman I got as far as the inside grill when I was fairly told: "You ain't comin' in." Well, there you are. This correspondent can take a hint as well as anyone. I went away, but not before getting a peek through the grill and discovering nobody at the tables. At least no guests, while waiters stood despondent wondering if life was worth all the trouble. I couldn't see into the bar but could tell by a pair of eyes spotted inside the grill that "the law" was on duty.

At the Vanity Fair I didn't do even as well. In fact I was recognized at the door and in no uncertain tones told to get lost. I did. Same at the Madrid. Both of the latter I was told were housed.

IF THERE WERE
Somehow shaken but appearing nonchalant for the sake of the boy friend, whose gaze is still distinctly hostile, I peer about the place. Where is the good old conspiracy, the half-fellow-will-be-the, "the" which has attracted to the club the boys of the press?

My friends, there is none. The "law." None of the Nitro boys are around. There are lots of tables but there are no guests.
I turn again to the bar.
"Leave us a drink," I say to the bartender.
"Light or dark," he inquires, with great lack of cordiality.
"Oh, make it red and a ginger ale chaser," I counter hopefully having been given to understand that liquor can be purchased.

"SHOTS" IN HIDING
The bartender frowns like a setter pointing and my boy friend from Berkeley at moves forward from this place to the next.
"This place is no joint," says the bartender. "We got some nice beer."
"I don't like beer," I lie, "but

IT'S RIGHT S---LIDGE

Mr. Smith's Position

MR. AL SMITH, of Tammam and Wall Street, writing in the promissory columns of the Outcast, delivers himself of a long and labored wisecrack about the NRA, the RFC, the CWA, etc.

Mr. Smith surmises that the President's professors have been playing anagrams with the alphabet soup and that the soup has gotten cold. Let no one jump to the conclusion that Mr. Smith does not know what he is talking about.

Al certainly ought to know better than anybody else the temperature of the political soup. He has been in it ever since 1928.

However, Al should remember that what is cold soup for him is duck soup for the President and for the nation.

Perhaps the noblest thing that Mr. Roosevelt has done is the creation of the CWA to give those in need immediate relief work, instead of charity.

BUT all of the combinations of initials which Mr. Smith so cynically derides are better than the QMD—Old Man Depression—into which Mr. Smith's Wall Street friends cruelly plunged us and out of which Mr. Roosevelt is heroically trying to lift us.

Honest and constructive suggestion to the President about any public matter is valuable, but bitter and biased criticism is harmful—harmful to the critic and harmful to the country.

"Let me make my position unmistakable," says Al, using a dollar word on the Wall Street gold basis.

We beg to assure Mr. Smith that his position is ABSOLUTELY unmistakable. It is the customary position of the political sorehead.

I could use a shot.
"I would like to see you get a shot, pal," interrupts the guardian of the law, "But you ain't going to get it here, even if they did sell it to you."

"I get it," I interrupt and move toward the door.
"That gives you an idea. It seems to me that Mr. Hultman has also had an idea."

"BAD BOY" ANGRY
Somewhat depressed but not discouraged we moved on to the Theatrical Club. Here a stalwart officer of the law, on duty outside, gravely demanded my name. Having no record I gave it, but I understood others were not so much on the record as I was. In fact, there is reason to believe that some persons were going on after a fashion but there was a funeral atmosphere.

Inside the Theatrical Club business did not tell their right names but there was a funeral atmosphere. It resembled a wake or something. It was too depressing, and I left hurriedly for fear of sobbing.

A little trouble took place outside, but nothing of moment. Six cops constituted a terrible force to a cameraman if he tried to take a picture of the place.

BUSINESS TERRIBLE
Conditions were must the same in most of the other de luxe clubs. So I decided to descend the stairs as you might say. At the entrance to the South End Citizens' Club I found a guard in addition to the police officer, who barred the door. Try it I might I couldn't mount the long flight of stairs to the door. My luncheon. Again a photographer was threatened outside, but he made the picture.

Other places, still farther down the line, were not so particular, but they were taking no chances at that. In some they frisked customers to make sure they were not police spotters carrying bottles inside to plant on the innocent proprietors. None of them was doing much business, and from the attitude of the employees and bosses they did not expect, for the time being, at least. Most of them, which means the better known, suffered from no reason and state police to check up on Wickman's activities in this state.

"Something's got to be done," according to the "boys."

WOMAN ENDS FOR ROOSEVELT
Warm Springs, Ga., Dec. 2 (INB)—President Roosevelt today addressed a group of vacationers in a telegram, preparatory to leaving tomorrow for Washington.

He had only one appointment, his presence at the vacation home on Tuesday. He planned to devote the rest of the day to swimming, motorcycling and resting.

Mr. Roosevelt, who came here for his third winter, said he wanted to return north with her husband, in his recreation program today.

The President has devoted much time to preparing a speech he will make over a nationwide radio broadcast at noon Wednesday night, dedicated to the Federal Council of Churches.

Wife's Sleuth Nabs Hubby and Girl
Worcester, Dec. 2—A private detective hired by a Boston wife, caused the arrest today in a Lincoln st. apartment of Raymond Chase, 26, insurance man, and Miss Esther Brown, 24. They were charged with misconduct and the case was put over to Wednesday on request of the state who said he wanted to get a lawyer.

Police said that his wife and two children in Boston about recently had been working in Worcester and, through her attorney, put Detective James H. Morgan on the trail.

The Dramatic Story of Science, Love, and Revenge

'beacon hill'

By Betty Alden

AT HALF AFTER NOON TODAY the beautiful Elizabeth C. Thomas plights her troth to Mr. Samuel L. Owen, Jr., at a very informal and quiet ceremony, performed by the Rev. Arthur Lee Kinsolving in Leslie Lindsey Chapel of Emmanuel Church. . . . The bride who is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Douglas H. Thomas, Jr., of Baltimore and Nantux, and niece of Mrs. Robert H. Stevenson, of Beacon st., and Bar Harbor, wears a tulle veil caught to her hair by a coronet of gold and silver and orange blossoms over her gown of heavy ivory satin made with a deep yoke and cuffs of old family lace and a long train, the whole giving an effect of rich simplicity. . . . Her flowers are bouvardia and gardenias.

Mrs. Malcolm Bradlee of Boston, the former Alice Thomas, is serving her sister as matron of honor and only attendant. . . . She is gowned in a wine red velvet dress made with a bertha trimmed in sable, her costume completed by a small hat with a sable coronet and a sable muff.

Mrs. Stevenson, at whose home the wedding reception takes place, is wearing a very distinguished costume of golden brown velvet with a guimpe of point d'esprit sprinkled with golden dots, a small brown hat and a face veil.

In keeping with the simplicity of the wedding plans the only decorations in the chapel will be calla lilies. Both the ceremony and the reception are being limited to relatives of the bride couple. . . . Among the out of town relatives present will be Miss Katherine Whitridge of Baltimore, a cousin of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. E. Gerry Chadwick of New York, an uncle and aunt, and Miss Alice Gilmer, who lived for years in the bride's family.

Member of Junior League and Vincent Club
SERVING AS BEST MAN AT this important alliance is E. Newton P. Stokes, 24, of Washington, D. C. . . . and the usher staff includes Malcolm Bradlee, Marjorie Jenkins, Clement Burnham and Nathaniel Wait Smith, Jr., of Providence, R. I. . . . The bridegroom was graduated from Harvard in 1930 and is now at the Harvard Law School in 1933. . . . His bride is a member of the Junior League and Vincent Club, having been presented in the season of 1929-30 at the Bachelor's Cotillion in Baltimore and also in Boston. . . . The new home will be established on Puckney st.

The Country Club in Brookline will be the scene next Wednesday evening, Dec. 6, of another important debut, when Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hale Pillsbury of Milton and Dr. and Mrs. George O. Clark of Beacon st. will present their daughters, Miss Sally Pillsbury and Miss Alice Mosley Clark, at a dance preceded by an usher's dinner for 80 guests at the club.

The length of the usher's list, which includes the names of about 35 attractive students from across the Charles, assures the young ladies present a gay time. . . . Albert L. Nickerson, Jr., Samuel W. Pillsbury and George Clark head the list and among their assistants are Messrs. Samuel Drury, Taggart Whipple, John Howe, John Bryant, Henry Robbins, Arthur A. Ballantine, John Perry, David Ware, Henry Hoyt, John Bowditch, Lauriston Riggs, Abbott Ranges, Christopher Weld, Winthrop Lee, Arthur Perry, Gilbert Butler, Jr., and James Stuart Fuller. . . . The list is not absolutely complete so we stop here. . . .

Debutante guests at the usher's dinner will include Miss Helen Cabot, Miss Helen Cunningham, Miss Eleanor Shaw, Miss Charlotte Denny, Miss Margaret Westworth, Miss Gertrude M. Glinley, Miss Nancy Moller, Miss Gertrude Lawrence Peabody, Miss Hetty Richardson, Miss Margot Warner, Miss Barbara Taylor and Miss Laura Dodge.

Both Miss Pillsbury and Miss Clark are Winsor girls. . . .

Polly Cotter Hostess of Dinner
POLLY COTTER FOUND TIME LAST EVENING between pouring at Ursula Coues' tea and Astrid Rice's and Amy Lang's dance at the Country Club to entertain Eric Leight, the toast of debutante and collegian alike, at dinner-for-eight. . . . her other guests were Virginia Wells, Ursula Coues, Jean Fuller. . . . and Bill Burton, Gardner E. (Ben) Prouty, Jr., and "Gill" Simonds. . . .

The long illness of Lily Pons, adored of the public, has forced her to cancel her engagement to sing on the second program of the Boston Morning Musicales next Wednesday, Dec. 11. . . . In her place Richard Crooks, whose engagement for later in the winter has been advanced to this date, will thrill the subscribers with the marvellous quality of his voice. . . .

Mrs. John Hoar of Brookline will be hostess to the pourers, who will include Mrs. Arthur W. Bell, Mrs. Robert H. Stevenson and Mrs. Charles A. Rheault of Westwood, assisted by Mrs. Frederick Holdsworth of Brookline, Mrs. Robert Treat Paine, Mrs. Harold C. Stuart, Mrs. Frank B. Bemis, Mrs. Clarence E. Allen and Mrs. Joseph J. Bodell of Providence. . . .

Debutante ushers will be under the direction of Mrs. Eliot Spalding and Miss Martha Wiglesworth. . . . They include Beatrice Phillips, Susan C. Bird, Alice M. Clark, Polly Powers, Anna Wiglesworth, Catherine Rich, Dorothy Newman, Gertrude M. Glinley, Susanann Ayer, Margot Warner, Sally Gallagher, Cynthia Hoar, Molly Wheeler, Anne Sornwell, Margaret Stockton, Eleanor King, Dorothy Harding, Louise McNeil, Nancy G. Cabot, Dorothy Preston and Barbara Coffin.

Mrs. William Dana Orcutt to Speak
THE Sudden ILLNESS OF JOSEPH LINCOLN, beloved author of Cape Cod Stories, compels a rearrangement of speakers in the Monday Mornings of Diversion sponsored by Mrs. William Dana Orcutt. . . . the speakers who will have the good fortune of hearing Mrs. Orcutt herself on Monday morning in the Georgian Room of the Statler.

Monday's lecture will be profusely illustrated with lantern slides, a unique collection collected by artists in different countries. . . . One of Boston's successful novelists, Emilie Loring (Mrs. Victor J. Loring), whose books are rapidly increasing in popularity, Mrs. William Lawrence Wood, Mrs. Geiton C. Kim, and Mrs. Frank A. Pemberton will be at the door. . . .

Polly Powers Is Bride Today

Miss Polly Powers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Overhill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Overhill, of Omaha, Nebraska, is being married at 4 o'clock this afternoon to Dr. Richard L. Overhill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Overhill, of Omaha, Nebraska. The wedding service in the First Church in Chestnut Hill will be performed by Rev. Dr. Penn, rector, in the First Church in Chestnut Hill.

In Bride Group

The bride is being preceded to the altar by Miss Betty Little of Atlanta, Ga., maid of honor, who wears a gown of blue velvet and dark brown tulle feathers, and carrying a bouquet of chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids are similarly gowned in brown velvet dresses with the same accessories as the maid of honor. The bridesmaids are Miss Mary Stuart Jordan of Boston, Miss Anita Hume of Farmington, Ct., Miss Martha Dorn of Bradford, Pa., and Miss Betty Fuller of Boston. The bride is being preceded to the altar by Miss Betty Little of Atlanta, Ga., maid of honor, who wears a gown of blue velvet and dark brown tulle feathers, and carrying a bouquet of chrysanthemums.

Honored

The bride entertained at luncheon at the Algonquin Club yesterday in honor of her attendants and last evening Dr. and Mrs. Howard M. Clute were hosts at a dinner dance at their home in honor of the bride and bridegroom. Dr. Overhill, who is associated with the Lavy Clinic of Boston, was graduated from the University of Nebraska School of Medicine in 1929. His bride attended the Madeira School in Washington and recent last winter studying in Paris. After the New Year, the bride couple will be at home on St. Paul st. Brookline.

Ripley Broadcasts on Holy Land Tonight

New York. (AP)—Ripley will broadcast over NBC on a national hookup as guest artist on the "Saturday Night Dancing Party" program from 10 to 11 p.m. He will talk about the Garden of Eden, his interesting data on Russian hangings and news of a city built by Noah. Ripley is the "leading" in the school and went to the Holy Land, and recovery were slowly but surely succeeding.

Labor Head Sees U.S. Recovery Progress

General. Dec. 2 (AP)—Harold I. Green, head of the international labor organization, related to the United States today to say he believed American efforts toward recovery were slowly but surely succeeding.

He said that employment, production, banking security and agricultural prices had improved considerably since March.

'the social whirl'

PLANS ARE BEING MADE FOR THE most exclusive suppers to be held at the Statler in January and March under the auspices of the Junior League. In charge of those special affairs is Mrs. John A. Tuckerman as chairman with many prominent assistants. It is always interesting when Boston plans these highly important affairs. There is so much of a question as to who will be asked. We only wish that they did not stir up quite so much hard feeling, because after all, what is a dance more or less in a person's life? But when Boston's best decide to make it "special," we have noticed there is much waiting and gnashing of teeth.

With Dorothy Whipple Fry

leader leaps a wall of convention the whole flock must needs go bobbing over. It is a great mistake, and we always like to observe those who have the courage to stand fast and refuse to be stampeded. One young lady who we noticed all last winter definitely refused to submit to the mob impression was Miss Anna De Cornis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dedington De Cornis. Her debut in the social season last year was an outstanding success. But it was our observation that she succeeded in dominating every occasion, rather than letting herself be swept away by the trend of circumstances. At present she is dark-eyed, well poised and attractive young miss is student at Vassar, where she still performs as a soloist in her own company. Levee Miss Anna De Cornis was presented a smart tea, at the Algonquin Club, is definitely one of those young ladies who succeed in keeping the reins of ladylike conduct firmly in her grasp. She will not be stampeded and we have hardly seen anyone so equidistant as she was in her gown of silver lace with a long train that had touches of apple green as lining revealing with the dark-eyed, well poised and attractive young miss is student at Vassar, where she still performs as a soloist in her own company.

Series of Plays for Children

An active suburban committee has been formed in the interests of the six plays for children which are being staged by Clara Tree Major of the Children's Theater Co. of New York, under the auspices of the Boston University Women's Council. Mrs. John P. Rutherford of the Hotel Vendome is chairman of the committee and she has the assistance of a group of representative women from each community.

For the presentation of "Curdie, the Princess, and the Goblin" at the Repertory Theater on Saturday, Dec. 2, at 8 o'clock, Mrs. Miss Edith Abbott has announced that the Muscetto Trio will provide the music. Mrs. Leo O'Neill will have charge of the production. Mrs. Lefroy M. Miner Sheldon has arranged for the radio broadcasts. Mrs. Lefroy M. Miner will distribute posters, and morning coffee will be served by Mrs. Grace S. Gibbs and Mrs. Frank Dutton.

Marriage License Bureau Enjoys Boom

Whether or not good news depends on the viewpoint, but marriages for the first time since 1929 are increasing in Boston, according to City Register James J. Mulvey. A list of 807 couples have taken out marriage licenses this year, exactly 100 more than the total for the corresponding year of 1932.

Frolic Planned as Benefit

Miss Anna B. Miss Jane Brown, and Miss Landale Watson are on the junior committee assisting the entertainment committee which is making plans for the surprise party which the directors of the Christian Shop are planning for the evening of Dec. 12 at the Hotel Somerset. This event will be in the nature of last year's Farmer's Frolic but with many new features. There will also be a floor show which will commence promptly at 9:30.

The entertainment committee includes the following names: Mrs. Thomas Mooley, Jr., Mrs. James A. Nelson, Mrs. Franklin W. Hobbs, Mrs. Ernest M. Parsons, Mrs. Wilbur W. Higgins, Mrs. Howard Merriam, Miss M. M. Brackett, Mrs. Eliot Spalding, Mrs. Robert Cushman, Mrs. C. C. Caproni, Mrs. William H. Goodwin, Mrs. Adolf Leeds and Mrs. Robert P. Hoffman.

WHAT A HIGHBALL MISS LIBERTY WILL QUAFF

Miss Liberty had an approving twinkle in her eye when the Misses Barbara Blane and Ann St. George drank a toast to the coming liberty of repeal. Of course, Miss Liberty can't officially respond to the toast until Dec. 5, and then—it will require a whole distillery to furnish her libation.

A REAL INDIAN VISITS HIM

Timmy Tim, a beloved little sufferer at the Boston Floating Hospital, expressed a desire to talk with a real Indian. Chief Toma, a full-blooded Navajo, is shown telling Timmy a tale of the Plains. The Boston Evening American saw to it that an Indian was introduced to Tim.

Margaret Lindsay, New York show girl, shows you dress of sheer white wool. The medium length tunic shows slight fullness over the skirt, featuring shoulder trim of white military braid, used on gauntlet cuffs. Nifty! What do you say?

CRASH! BANG! DARKNESS!

An automobile hit a telephone pole. Down went the pole—but not before breaking a number of electric light wires—that caused much darkness in neighborhood of First and Spring Sts., East Cambridge, Chemois E.

Messina, of Somerville, was auto driver. He claimed he was blinded by automobile light. Patrolmen Mark Cunningham and Arthur Doyle are shown at scene with pole crashing auto.

DEATH IS CHEATED IN AUTO RACE SMASH

Shooting around a turn in the Hoboken, N. J., dirt track auto races, car No. 8, driven by Buddy Holmstead, of Northport, L. I., is shown as it slid off the track, smashing into a fence. Holmstead (arrow) is seen as he was catapulted from his racer, which is turning turtle. He was rushed to a nearby hospital where an examination revealed a dislocated hip, bruises, but no other injury. That's luck Speed—dust—crash—spoke—nobody killed.

LINDBERGH'S AT AZORES

Here is the first photograph of our first flying family, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, at this Azorean stopover on their rambling flight about the world. They are given a royal greeting by the islanders, and they put up for two nights and a day, and then hopped off to the Canary Island group, and from there to Africa.

Its stockholders are meeting soon to consider a proposal to merge on a 50-50 basis the marketing properties of the company in the Far East with the producing and refining properties

Carloadings and power output standards of comparisons this week are made of little value, owing to the fact that a year ago the reported seven-day period included Thanksgiving Day.

Interest in the carrier shares is still very limited, and those who follow the charts still strongly aver that the general market will not go ahead until the rails are brought some buying has been attracted to Canada Dry Ginger Ale, as the company is becoming a factor in the liquor business. It has already made arrangements for a well rounded line of all kinds of liquors including wines, beer and cordials. It has been reported that negotiations are about to be concluded with the Distillers Securities of Scotland for exclusive rights to American sale of one of their better known brands of Scotch whis-

New York, Dec. 2.—Stronger tone of the dollar influenced an easier trend in cotton futures today. Liverpool closed 7 to 16 American points lower than due and the market here opened off 3 to 6 points, but closed steady, off only one to two points.

CORPORATE EARNINGS AND THE PRICE LEVEL

The graph displays two data series over time from 1929 to 1947. The top line represents 'INDUSTRIAL & MERCHANTILE EARNINGS' (Price Index 1929 = 100), and the bottom line represents 'INDEX OF WHOLESALE COMMODITY PRICES' (1926 = 100). Both series show a significant decline in the early 1930s, followed by a recovery and then a sharp drop in 1947.

JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE, president of the American Institute of the Fast Food Industry, is the center of the fast developing controversy between the inflationists and the money group is centering largely on the possible effects of the Federal Reserve's action. It is true that a rise in the price of money will promote corporate prosperity. Is it true that a rise in the price level will enable individuals to pay off their debts more easily? The inflationists answer in the affirmative as rapidly as prices. If he can pay 50 per cent more for his goods, his real salary, supplies, and other necessities will rise at a similar rate of 50 per cent in the price of his own products will not let him in any better position to pay his debts.

On the other hand, the advocates of rising prices refute this argument as follows: They point to accompanying chart and state that since the middle of 1929, when the price level was 100, the index has strikingly matched by

The sound money people say that the price level is expected to rise, but that the rise in prices will be little to do with the loss of the ability to pay off debts. They maintain that debts will be paid out of profits and that, in turn, as the result of the increase in the price level, there will be a difference between income and cost. The latter is largely the result of the inflationist attitude of a sense of security.

The inflationist point of view is that the inflationary point of view is that the burden has been repeatedly exploited in collusion with inflation, will hardly be able to pay off their obligations if costs rise.
